Criteria requirements of the European business excellence model: a suggested approach

The Authors

Evanthia P. Vorria, Department of Business Administration, University of Piraeus, Piraeus, Greece

George A. Bohoris,

Abstract

Purpose – The European business excellence model (EBEM) with the most frequent requirements, however, involve abstract and prescriptive nature, allowing for different approaches to the requirements. This paper aims to resolve some of the questions

Abstract-结构性文摘:

- Purpose-目的
- Design/methodology/approach-设计方法
- Findings-发现
- Research limitations/implications-研究局限性 (if applicable)
- Practical implication-应用性 (if applicable)
- Social implications-社会影响 (if applicable)
- Originality/value-原创性

... of purposes, requirements, suggested approaches to a very prescriptive nature of the suggested paper aims to resolve

Design/methodology/approach – Integration of the known literature, stemming from both published articles and best practices already made available, to form a well defined framework of suggested approaches to the EBEM's requirements is the approach taken.

Teaching Zone

Resources for teaching faculty and students in business and management

Emerald's Teaching Zone is designed to provide support and ideas for faculty involved in teaching business and management.

Teaching insights offer helpful and usable information to anyone in a teaching role who feels they would benefit from a little extra insight into the performance of that role. Case studies are ideal to use as examples of business issues and are updated regularly. Also included are in-depth reviews of management books and interviews which form an interesting and lively snapshot of the people who shape the business and academic fields. Emerald also supports the Global Forum for Management Education (GFME). For more information, visit the GFME website.

Teaching Zone resources are available to Emerald subscribers. Simply select the "login" bar at the top of the page and use your Emerald account details to access.
